Hints and Tips on KPI Feedback/References

Why they are important?

- A reference value is used to determine the notation value for the selected category and therefore it is recommended that the reference is for a high value contract completed in the last three years

A buyer selecting a supplier will often take up references. This gives them:

- Re-assurance that your previous customers would use you again
- Peace of mind that the supplier is competent in the areas they wish to work
- Confidence that the supplier is able to cope with the value of contract

For new applications, we suggest:

- Start small. Add just one category to begin with, and then you'll just need two references to get up and running. You can add further work categories later.
- Don't forget to review your work categories on a regular basis. There may be other categories you can register for at no additional cost.

We recommend that you collect KPI Feedback/References on a regular basis:

- The more feedback left against a Supplier record, the more confidence a buyer is likely to have in selecting the supplier
- Buyers like to see references for recent work, so get into the habit of requesting a reference each time you complete a contract – don't wait for Constructionline to chase you!
- References are easier obtain shortly after a contract has been completed rather than months or years down the line
- References can help you add more "work categories" against your Constructionline record – helping increase your chances of winning more work
- You may be able to increase your overall Constructionline score by providing more references.
- You may be able to increase your notation level with higher value references and strong accounts.

Get into the habit

Obtaining references is simple – just give our one-page reference form to your client/site manager at the end of each job, or email it to the buyer.
